A: It is a bug, fixed in Delcam 2017. UPDATE: (03/10/13) This press release originally stated that Whillans is raising twice as much money as he did during his unsuccessful campaign for the Utah 4th congressional district in 2002. That was not the case. Whillans is raising $500,000 in this race. This mistake was made by the Park City News. Several weeks ago Park City's Jennifer Whillans and Congresswoman-elect Mia Love announced their campaigns for the Utah 4th congressional district. Now, with less than six weeks before the deadline to file for state office, Love is facing a challenge from challenger Ben McAdams and emerging as the favorite, according to the Salt Lake Tribune. The competitive primary will likely be decided by a group of voters in Eagle Mountain who paid $15 to see Love speak in the town square last week. Love attracted more than 200 people at a candidate forum on March 4. Her supporters outnumbered her opponents. The congresswoman-elect had support from most of the town's business owners. McAdams, a former investment banker, is from Eagle Mountain and has been endorsed by The Salt Lake Tribune. The Tribune reports he has found support in the state Democratic Party and within the Salt Lake County Council.
